As the Tail Wags

By Ursula Hoeft

Gus has been at it again! He was using the computer again, this time on New Year's eve while Greg and I were out celebrating. He must have been reflecting on his past transgressions because I found a list of New Year's resolutions he had written. Here's what it said about how he's going to change his behavior in 2011.

- I will not "bug" mom and dad when they're working on the computer, especially when mom is doing Paw Prints.
- I will not use the leather sofas in the family room as a playground and will, instead, lay quietly in "my" corner when we're watching TV.
- I will not take all the toys out of my toy box and scatter them around the house, and I will never leave toys on the stairs for mom and dad to trip over.
- I will not try to shake the Tribune to death when I'm carrying it up the driveway and will bring it into the house undamaged.
- I will not "steal" their hats and gloves and run around the house with them when mom and dad are getting ready to go out.
- I will not "hog" the bed and try to push mom and dad off it during the night.
- I will not roll in slimy grey blobs I find in the grass no matter how tantalizingly wonderful they smell.
- I will not jump on dad and make wet nose marks on his eyeglasses.
- And I will not embarrass mom at training by pretending that I've never heard words like heel, sit, down, jump, get it, stay.
- But I will keep chasing the hated mailman away every time he comes to our house.
- I will relentlessly hunt those wrascally rabbits that hang out in our yard and try to destroy our flowers and bushes.
- I will eat my entire bowl of food even if mom doesn't put anything special in it.
- I will take mom and dad for a walk every day.
- I will hold still when mom is brushing me so my fur won't be matted when Terri cuts my hair.

Since I found his list crumpled up in the wastepaper basket, with teeth marks in it, I'm not counting on Gus living up to his resolutions. But he's such a lovable little guy that I really don't mind his occasional "delinquency."

As for me, I'm determined to keep at least one of my New Year's resolutions: to do my best to make training fun - fun for Gus and fun for me! Perfect heeling, straight sits, quick retrieving, and all that other stuff will come in good time.

Best wishes for the New Year.

*May it be a happy and healthy one for us all.
And may our dogs' tails never stop wagging.*

Snow And Ice Can Be Nice ...

... but there are some things we need to keep in mind when we take our dogs out into that winter wonderland.

While winter can and should be fun, to keep our dogs safe, there are things we need to be mindful of at this time of the year. I found this advice on the AKC's website:

- Don't leave your dog outside in the cold for long periods of time. Wind chill makes days colder than actual temperature readings. Be attentive to your dog's body temperature, and limit its time outdoors.
- Adequate shelter is a necessity. Keep your dog warm, dry and away from drafts. Tiles and uncarpeted areas may become extremely cold, so make sure to place blankets and pads on floors in these areas.
- Be extra careful when walking or playing with your dog near frozen lakes, rivers or ponds. Your dog could slip or jump in and get seriously injured.
- Groom your dog regularly. Your dog needs a well-groomed coat to keep properly insulated. Short or coarse-haired dogs may get extra cold, so consider a sweater or coat. Long-haired dogs should have excess hair around the toes and foot pads trimmed to ease snow removal and cleaning. If you do the trimming, take care not to cut the pads or other delicate areas of the foot.
- Feed your dog additional calories if it spends a lot of time outdoors or is a working animal. It takes more energy in the winter to keep body temperature regulated, so additional calories are necessary.
- Towel or blow-dry your dog if it gets wet from rain or snow. It is important to dry and clean its paws, too. This helps avoid tiny cuts and cracked pads. A little petroleum jelly may soften the pads and prevent further cracking.
- Don't leave your dog alone in a car. If the car engine is left on, the carbon monoxide will endanger your dog's life. If the engine is off, the temperature in the car will get too cold.

Avoid walking through the salt that's used to melt snow. Some of these products now claim to be safe for pets, but I wouldn't count on it.

Make sure coyotes don't get too chummy!

Coyotes have become a common sight in the Chicagoland area. A couple of weeks ago we saw two coyotes walking nonchalantly along the path across from our house on the southern edge of downtown Northbrook. And last year, a coyote was a common sight in our neighborhood. It was often seen walking on people's lawns and driveways. Since there are many young children in our neighborhood, its fearless behavior was concerning to our neighbors. It was eventually tranquilized and removed to a wildlife rehabilitation facility. If the two coyotes we saw recently don't keep their distance, a similar fate will no doubt befall them.

Coyotes are usually not aggressive or otherwise dangerous, but they're wild animals nonetheless and should be treated as such. While they quickly get used to the human population and want to "hang out" with us, discourage them from getting too chummy by keeping your trash containers tightly closed and not leaving pet food outside. Cases of coyotes harming small dogs have been reported. A coyote doesn't know the difference between a tea-cup poodle (or a Maltese) and a rabbit, which is part of its normal diet.

If you have an electric fence, remember that, while it will keep your dog on your property, it won't keep another animal off! During the Christmas holidays several years ago, a house sitter who was also caring for the vacationing owners' Yorkshire terrier let the dog out to do its "business" knowing that it wouldn't go anywhere because the property was surrounded by an electric fence. After a few minutes she heard a horrible racket outside. It was the dog's anguished cries as he was being dragged away by a coyote. The poor dog was never found; only its collar was eventually discovered in a wooded area near the home.

From the D.O.T.

Hope your Holidays were great, and I wish all of you a healthy and prosperous New Year!!

Guess what! Spring is not far off so the Spring Registration form is in this issue of Paw Prints. The deadline for registration is February 22. Remember to re-up your dog's health information if it is out of date.

The March 1 Program will be a Canine Good Citizen (CGC) test.

INSTRUCTORS:

Please send your forms in as early as possible as it makes it much easier to lay out the classes. Thanks.

From Lois Leidahl-Marsh:

Lena earned her Rally Novice title on December 17 at Northwest Obedience Club's trial. For her three legs, she took two firsts and one fourth with scores of 100, 96 and 98. She also earned her CGC in October.

(Lena is a Bernese Mountain Dog)

Congratulations Lois and Lena!

From "Jokin' Jerry" (Wulff)

A sign in an office window read, "Help wanted. Must type 70 words per minute. Must be computer literate and bilingual. Equal opportunity employer."

A dog was ambling down the street and saw the sign. He looked at it for a moment, then pulled it down with his mouth and walked into the manager's office. The manager laughed and said, "I can't hire a dog for this job."

The dog pointed to the line, "Equal opportunity employer." So the manager said, "OK - type this letter." The dog sat at the computer powered it on and a minute later had a finished and perfectly formatted letter.

The manger wasn't convinced. "I still can't hire you for this position. You have to be bilingual."

The dog looked at the manager and said, "Meow."

Acting Debut

On December 16, at Friendship Village in Schaumburg, Miss Daisy made her acting debut by portraying a "donkey" in their Living Nativity production. The Sewing Circle at this facility even provided a costume for her to wear. Too cute!!!

Miss Daisy was one of three dogs that had been given parts in the production. There was a Maltese that portrayed a cow/bull with a costume that included horns and udders, and a Border Collie that was cloaked in faux sheep skin. All dogs were very well behaved and took their parts seriously!

The Master of Ceremonies read The Christmas Story; Christmas Caroling followed. The facility was very appreciative of our allowing the dogs to participate.

Since her acting debut, Miss Daisy has become a true DIVA!!!!

(For those who don't know her, Miss Daisy is a very lovely Airedale Terrier. Watch for a photo of her in her donkey costume in next month's issue of Paw Prints. - ed.)

Rand Park will hold a membership meeting at 9 p.m. on Tuesday, January 11. Everyone is welcome to attend.

"Nothing is more destructive of respect for the government and the law of the land than passing laws which cannot be enforced." -- Albert Einstein

Convicted dogfight organizer / Eagles quarterback Michael Vick would make a good dog owner?! Certainly not in my book!! Yet Wayne Pacelle, President of the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) is quoted by the Atlanta Journal Constitution on 12/16/10 as saying: "I have been around him (Vick) a lot, and feel confident that he would do a good job as a pet owner." Read the full article here: <http://www.ajc.com/news/dog-advocates-disagree-about-778151.html>

This wasn't an error on Pacelle's part; several days later, when contacted by a Norfolk, VA (Vick's home town) television station about this comment, HSUS replied: "Vick could eventually be a good pet owner, and with such a spotlight on him, he'll have a great incentive in taking proper care of a dog." <http://www.wtkr.com/news/wtkr-vick-dog-dec15.0,7951437.story>

Pacelle must have a short memory...not only did Vick organize dog fights in which he used his own dogs, but he also killed dogs with his own hands who didn't measure up to his standards (the remains of the tortured dogs were found on Vick's property). The court which convicted him found his actions so appalling that the sentencing judge recommended a lifetime ban on all dog ownership. And all this was just a few short years ago. But wait, as you can imagine there's more to the story. Of course, HSUS named Vick as an anti-dog fighting spokesperson for HSUS shortly after his release from jail, no doubt thinking of Vick as a golden fund raising opportunity. Not only that, about a year ago, HSUS recently accepted a $50,000 donation from the Eagles professional football team, which, according to HumaneWatch.org, was a payment for HSUS to "rehabilitate" Vick's public image. Read more here:

http://humanewatch.org/index.php/site/post/round_the_bend/

Congressmen Dan Boren (D-Okla.) and Paul C. Broun, M.D., (R-Ga.) join together to write a "Dear colleagues" letter opposing HR 5434, the Puppy Uniform Protection and Safety Act ("PUPS"), saying:

"Chief among our concerns is the manner in which the PUPS Act broadly defines "high volume breeder." Under this legislation, small hobby breeders, such as show breeders, hunting clubs, and dog trainers, who breed only a litter or two each year, would be "high volume breeders" and forced to comply with the Animal Welfare Act (AWA)...While we support the intent of the PUPS Act, animal negligence and cruelty such as improper care, constant confinement, overcrowded conditions, and lack of proper exercise, nutrition, or social contact are already illegal under laws that exist in each of the 50 states. Our concerns are shared by the American Kennel Club (AKC), the world's largest not-for-profit registry of purebred dogs and a leading advocate and authority for responsible dog ownership and care..."

Read the entire letter here:

http://www.akc.org/pdfs/canine_legislation/PUPSdearcolleague12022010.pdf

...And that letter implies more good news. Yes, the AKC had finally actively started to oppose PUPS (in previous statements, released over the summer, they were just "monitoring" the bill.) In a letter addressed to members of Congress Dennis Sprung, AKC's Chief Executive Officer, emphasized the need for enforcement of existing regulations of the AWA, concluding by writing, "The AKC cannot support PUPS legislation before these issues are addressed." You can read the entire Sprung letter on pp. 4-5 in the current AKC's In Session at this link:

http://www.akc.org/pdfs/canine_legislation/in_session/winter_2010.pdf

The position statement concerning PUPS from the Illinois Federation of Dog Clubs and Owners (IFDCO) is still up; if you haven't read it, you can see it on the following IFDCO webpage:

http://ifdco.homestead.com/6-15-10_IFDCO_position_statement_on_PUPS.pdf

The good news is that the current PUPS bill will die at the end of this session. The bad news is that we are likely to see a similar federal bill appear in the not-to-distant future.

Your humor for the day... "Fur Protests Canceled Due to Weather". Fighting bad dog laws can get a little depressing at times, so an occasional humorous article is very important! That's why we were all giggling over a news item that last month, describing how Utah fur protesters, bedecked in their cottons, hems, synthetic shoes, and polyesters, couldn't cope with the Utah cold and snow, and gave up their protest and went home, while the non-protesters, sensibly attired in leather, wool, and (yes) fur, continued happily about their business without a weather care in the world. Enjoy!

Think it can't happen to you? Well, better think again. Walt and Sharyn Hutchens, moderators of the national pet-law list (and other legislation lists), know Virginia dog breeder Jean Cyhanick personally, having been to her kennel on various occasions. They vouch for the good care she gives her dogs, as well as her breeding practices. That's why, when Ms. Cyhanick was charged, and subsequently convicted, for various counts of "animal cruelty" under Virginia for having older dogs with tartar on their teeth, and ordered to give away her dogs and cease breeding, the Hutchens rallied to her cause, along with hundreds of other pet-law members and other concerned dog breeders. They have posted their entire account of her charges and trial on their blog, which is a very worthwhile read:

<http://got50.blogspot.com/2010/12/trial-of-jean-payne-cyhanick.html>

(Is their tarter on your dog's teeth? See, like I said, it can happen to you also.)

Kansas City, KS, is enforcing its Mandatory Spay Neuter (MSN) law by "door to door sweeps" and issuance of citations, according to KCDog Blog author Brent Toellner, who included a television news video clip about the subject. Brent writes:

And then, what happens if owners like the one in the video don't comply -- or can't afford to pay their fine? What happens to the pets then? Are they eventually confiscated and added to the shelter population? Is the woman jailed for not paying fines, leaving her pets ownerless?

<http://btoellner.typepad.com/kcdogblog/2010/12/burning-a-bridge-vs-building-one.html?cid=6a00d83451f90869e2013489b1c403970c>

Good questions, Brent! (And yet another good reason to be happy that we escaped, at least for the moment, MSN in Chicago.)

What can you do to protect your dog ownership rights now that the election is over? "After election" brings a let-down feeling for some, no matter which candidate won the election. Actually, now is the time to get busy. Here are a few simple ideas for you to start working on to make certain your legislator and local officials listen to YOU (and not to that other guy!)

1. Become active in your state dog club federation (for us here in Illinois, that's IFDCO). There's power in numbers, and your state federation needs your help! That's why you should join your state's federation, and volunteer on a committee, give them your ideas, network with other dog-related organizations, help in fundraising, and provide important input for the direction your federation is taking.
2. Use your Facebook or other "social networking" page to write about or link to organizations that work to protect our animal ownership rights. Facebook, and other "social networks," have proven an excellent media to spread the word about the dangers that Animal Rights organizations pose to not just show people and breeders, but all animal owners. You can easily include snippets from articles you believe are informative, along with the links to these pages on the Internet, on your own Facebook page. Or, just provide links to the important webpages for some of the major animal ownership and sportsmen's groups that have become so valuable in fighting the battle against adverse dog legislation and the Animal Rights groups that sponsor it. Such helpful groups can include AKC, UKC, NAIA, and SAOVA, and your own state federation. Finally, don't be hesitant about proudly calling yourself a dog owner, and providing yourself with a little bragging space on your own Facebook page, telling others what you and your dog have accomplished together.

3. Stay current with your local community's town or city council meetings. Even if you cannot attend in person, regularly check the meeting agenda (typically available online several days prior to the meeting) to see if a pet-related issue will come up. If so, contact your city council members to find out the background, and provide your own input. Again, make certain that they know that you are the expert on dogs before an important matter is voted on, so they will seek out and listen to your advice. It is always much easier to stop a bad law from being passed, than it is to overturn a bad law once it has been enacted.
4. If one of your other clubs does not currently have an AKC Legislative Liaison, volunteer for the job yourself! With bad laws flying at us from all directions, with the speed of light, it's imperative that every dog club – no matter now small – have its own Legislative Liaison. This person acts as the link between the AKC and their Club, to bring important local legislative information to the attention of the AKC (who can't possibly be everywhere, and depend upon the sharp eyes of legislative liaisons for much of their information), and to present important legislative news before the club members. You can learn more about what an AKC Legislative Liaison does on this webpage:

We have Jackie Limosani to thank for this beautiful message.

"Just A Dog" --

From time to time people tell me, "Lighten up, it's just a dog," or, "That's a lot of money for just a dog." They don't understand the distance traveled, the time spent or the costs involved for "just a dog."

Some of my proudest moments have come about with "just a dog."

Many hours have passed when my only company was "just a dog," but I did not once feel slighted.

Some of my saddest moments have been brought about by "just a dog," and, in those days of darkness, the gentle touch of "just a dog" gave me comfort and reason to overcome the day.

If you, too, think it's "just a dog," then you will probably understand phrases like "just a friend," "just a sunrise," or "just a promise."

"Just a dog" brings into my life the very essence of friendship, trust, and pure unbridled joy.

"Just a dog" brings out the compassion and patience that makes me a better person.

Because of "just a dog" I will rise early, take long walks and look longingly to the future.

So for me, and folks like me, it's not "just a dog" but an embodiment of all the hopes and dreams of the future, the fond memories of the past and the pure joy of the moment.

"Just a dog" brings out what's good in me and diverts my thoughts away from myself and the worries of the day.

I hope that someday they can understand that it's not "just a dog" but the thing that gives me humanity and keeps me from being "just a human."

So the next time you hear the phrase "just a dog," just smile....because they "just don't understand."
